

Woodbyrne: The fallen forest

About The Illustrator: Jill Lindner

Jill Lindner discovered her passion for art when she picked up her first piece of paper and made her first line upon it. She knew art was going to be with her a long time, as she created art on some objects and surfaces that her mother would prefer to forget. Jill has made a career from her passion for art. She is a Graphic Designer, conducts workshops in oil painting and enjoys a variety of freelance work including book illustration. Creating the cover for this book was an especially exciting challenge for Jill. She believes that fantasy is a great genre because within it anything is possible visually. When asked to encapsulate the process of creating the cover for this book, Jill said, "The whole process is magic, from the smell of the paints and turpentine to the finished product, this cover reflects the magic of Woodbyrne and it's mystique."

Inspired by the masters, Jill's art works range from the historic to futurism. Jill Lindner's work mirrors the soul of an old master with the energy of a modernist. She resides in Orange County, NY with her husband and children.

Jill welcomes your feedback on this book cover and is available for interviews, seminars and cover signings. Please feel free to contact Jill at JLinder@moopress.com.
